By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The Chamber of Commerce held its regular quarterly meeting today and considered a number of topics of general importance. Resolutions were adopted in regard to the forcible occupation of the Samoan Islands by German troops. The resolutions enter a strong protest against action on the part of Germany, and declare that it is the duty of the United States Government to protect the interests of its citizens in the islands by such vigorous action as may be consistent with national self-respect. The resolutions on this subject further declare as follows:

Resolved, That as representative of the commercial interests of the principal maritime city of the Pacific Coast, the Chamber of Commerce respectfully entreats its president to issue a policy of armed occupation of defenseless islands in the Pacific Ocean in order to force foreign commerce, which should be developed on a basis of merit and mutual advantage.

Resolved, That this policy, if permitted him, the president will immediately in an some European power in the near future, and it is a duty our Government owes its citizens to prevent this by the enunciation of a definite policy which shall command assent and respect.

Resolved, That while we recognize with satisfaction and regret the fact that the United States is possessed of no respectable naval force to protect American interests abroad, when a naval force we should at this time keep a close watch over the Pacific Islands, especially the Hawaiian and Samoa groups.

Resolved, That these resolutions be presented to the Senate and House of Representatives on the convening of the Fifteenth Congress.

An memorial was adopted asking Congress to extend the same support to American shipping lines as is now enjoyed by the subsidized companies of foreign countries, a memorial addressed to Congress asking for the abolition of the Pacific Mail.

It was also adopted, the resolutions favoring the establishment of a naval reserve to consist of officers and men in the merchant service.

THE GRAND ODD FELLOWS.

There has been a steady increase in the number of the Encampment each year, the assets in 1889 being $154,000, while in 1886 they were $163,899. Encampments are instituted during the year at Fresno, Bakersfield, and at Eureka, Siskiyou County.

Lord; Grand High Priest, A. M. May; Grand Secretary, B. C. Gandy; Grand Scribe, W. H. Lyon; Grand Treasurer, George W. Lemont; Grand Warden, A. P. Marcell; Trustees, C. Winn, W. H. Barnes and F. A. Week.

Memorials were presented to the Patriotic Order of Odd Fellows, and the resolution was adopted, that the contributions of the members of the Patriotic Order be given to the Grand Encampment of San Francisco, in which many lately-imported costumes and ornaments were used.

SEVERE ON SCALERS.

To Cutters to be Prosecuted Under the Interstate Act.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—[By the Associated Press.] There is talk in local road circles of a movement to bring restraint passenger agents to time by bringing suits against them under the Interstate Commerce Act. It is stated that sufficient proof to convict a dozen agents of illegal discrimination in the matter rates of fare has already been secured, and that affidavits and other documents have been drawn strong enough to charge the holds. There is no other in the United States, save an authority at least today, where the Interstate is so utterly disregarded as it is in San Francisco.

Exonerated.

[Boston Globe.] The pretty girls to be seen wheeling about young aristocrats do not wear those white caps as the badge of service; no indeed; they wear them to indicate that they are not the mothers of the homely brats that accompany them.

At 1 p.m. the President and Vice-President of the Exposition called at President Cleveland's rooms and escorted the President, Mrs. Cleveland and Postmaster-General Vilas to the Capitol, where they were received by Gov. Gordon and the visiting Governor, Supreme Court of the United States officials, municipal authorities and members of the Legislature.

This ceremony over the distinguished visitors, escorted by Gov. Gordon and Senator Brown and Colquitt, and accompanied by the visiting Governors and many other distinguished persons, proceeded to the exposition grounds.

A national salute was fired as the procession entered the enclosure and proceeded to the speaker's stand, where W. G. Gray, Vice-President of the Exposition, in a brief and eloquent speech, extended a welcome to the President.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPLY.

The President in reply gave a brief sketch of Atlanta's early history, its rapid growth and terrible destruction during the War of the Rebellion. "I have lately seen evidences of activity and perseverance of the people of the United States in the creation of prosperous and bustling cities, and in developing industries and improving from new settlements and the growth of new cities. But it seems to me that an element of heroism is added when people who view without despair the destruction of their native town, build again to build their waste places, and in spite of greatest discouragement, evince a determination to reach their destiny. In twenty-two years a second Atlanta has been built incomparably more populous and larger than the destroyed Atlanta. This place is first among the cities of this great State. Her constantly increasing business, her large manufacturing interests are evidence of the courage and enterprise of her people. The city is filled with elegant and many fine residences, means of amusements, and fine old German uncle in the hands of Mr. Taylor is a fine piece of character acting, and the rest of the piece is in capable hands."

UNDERTAKING TOO MUCH.

From the standing out this morning till midnight the President and his wife have been the recipients of a continued ovation.

Notwithstanding the heat and discomfort there are indications at every hand that Atlanta has undertaken more than she can creditably carry out. A bed tonight is worth a prince's ransom, and many a man and woman who come to town are afraid to let the price of a room exceed $100 a night. It is a magnetic drama and will bear repetition. In fact, it is almost impossible to appreciate all its subtle points to the full.

After the President concluded his speech there were calls for Gov. Gordon, who spoke briefly. The public reception at the fair grounds was a pleasant affair.

Media Ingleswood and the Pacific Coast members of the United States Commission on the care of the Veterans' Home, left for San Diego last evening. Yesterday morning the committee, in company with Judge Silent Garnham, President of the Board of Trade, and W. H. Bonsall, visited the beautiful suburbs of Ingleswood, about five miles southward of the city limits. There are several very suitable places around Ingleswood for the Home, but there is one in particular that Capt. Blanding thought a little finer than anything he had seen.
It is a high mesa or knoll, the ground gently sloping down to the valley. A view can be had from it of the shipping at San Pedro, the Arcadia Hotel at Santa Monica; also the Redondo Beach which is soon to be a place of so much importance. Looking north the views are most delightful, panoramic in character. In the foreground the plateau lies between there and the city, then comes the city of Los Angeles and in the background the grand range of the San Gabriel mountains. Capt. Blanding says that the picture is a grand one and can never be effaced from his memory. The commission of distinguished gentlemen will visit Los Angeles about the 15th of next month and at some time citizens should perfect their plans with reference to securing a site to serve.

J. G. THOMAS.

The First Man Tried Before a Unified States Jury in Los Angeles.
J. G. Thomas has the distinction of being the first man who has ever been completely tried in the United States District Court.
Thomas and others were charged with treating one Jefferson C. Thornton in his endeavor to settle upon Government land. The defendants, who number six farmers of San Diego county, elected to have their cases tried separately. Thomas was the first placed on trial, and was acquitted yesterday. A nolle prosequi will be entered against the rest of the defendants.

The Courts.

In Judge O'Melveny's court yesterday
the following business was transacted:
P. Dwight Pepper was granted a divorce from Josie R. Pepper.

JUDY CHENY.

The sentence of Dan Sheeley was continued to October 19th.

James Madden, convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, was sentenced to one month in the County Jail and to pay a fine of $100.

W. T. Downey, for burglary, was sentenced to two years in San Quentin.

Louis Condino was tried and found not guilty.

JUSTICE AUSTIN.

John Coopers was fined $40 for escaping from prison.

Joe Schubel was fined $10 for battery.

Mike Banning was fined $10 for battery.

He Will Get There.

An Mongolian named Dan Chai left wherever he was in the County Jail
a week past has been somewhat eventful.
On three occasions he has been in attendance at one of the Superior Courts, and between times the constables of both Justices' Courts have required his homely presence at the levées of the Justices.

On one occasion he has come through the court house alone, and yesterday, when he was unlucky enough to get forty days' time on a charge of larceny.

A Paper Carnival.

A meeting was yesterday afternoon held at the Pavilion, by the ladies of the Unity Church, to complete arrangements for a paper carnival, for the benefit of the Unity Club. The carnival will be held some time in December, the date to be fixed some time this week.

PALM SPRINGS

On Southern Pacific Railroad, in San Diego County.

50 Miles East of Riverside and San Bernardino; 100 Miles East of Los Angeles.

NO FROST! NO FOGS! NO HEAVY WINDS! 700 FEET ABOVE sea level! A winter paradise! The home of the banana, date and orange. Wild dates ripen in profusion in an adjoining cañon. Only spot in California where frost, fog and windstorms are absolutely unknown. The earliest season in the State. Best opportunity for men of moderate means. Every fruit and vegetable matures a month or six weeks earlier than anywhere else on the Coast. Is the southern part of the San Jacinto Mountain Park Valley famous all over the southern part of the State as being the location of the Agua Caliente Springs, whose waters are an absolute specific for rheumatism and a host of other diseases. The soil of the valley is remarkably fertile, and it has been demonstrated that every fruit and vegetable will mature in this favored spot a month or more in advance of any other place. There is a

MAGNIFICENT WATER SUPPLY,

Derived from the White Water River and other sources, and a fine stone canal has just been completed, some eight miles in length, which conveys at all times an abundance of water. For a Sanitarium

No spot in the country offers so many natural advantages as that slightly bench of land in the Duarte commonly known as the

"GEARY RANCH."

There is here found a rare combination of those sanative conditions indispensable to the successful treatment of throat and lung affections. The location is absolutely above the extreme fog limits. The chill of night and early morning hours is tempered by radiated warmth from the mountains that tower behind in close proximity. The heat of day is moderated by the natural conditions insured by an elevated and exposed situation. The magnificent mountains in the rear afford an effectual barrier against north winds, and from their deep ravines an abundant supply of pure spring water is obtained. A background of rugged mountains, a broad expanse of fertile valley below, with a strip of ocean shimmering beyond, combine to form scenery at once grand and beautiful in its diversified loveliness. The site is within a half hour's drive from the railroad station and over an excellent road of easy grade, by groves and vineyards and through a pretty live oak canyon in which not a trace of sand-wash is visible.

This valuable property, comprising in all 140 acres, will be sold as a whole, or a site for a sanitarium or mountain hotel. Can be secured on very advantageous terms, providing the parties will erect thereon buildings of a certain value.

HER STYLE.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE OF MRS. CLEVELAND.

Robust Physique and a Cheerful Disposition Give Her Remarkable Endurance—Toilets Worn During the Western and Southern Tour.

[Inter Ocean.]

It is a matter of constant wonder to many good people that Mrs. Cleveland is physically able to endure the exhausting exertions of her position as lady of the White House, and at the same time appear always so joyously gay. She never pleads weariness as an excuse for any inaction on her part, she never complains of her duties, will not accept commiserations, and by looks, speech and daily life reiterates the fact that she fully enjoys existence. At her fortnightly Saturday afternoon receptions held in the White House during the season at the capital, she has often stood two hours and a half and spoken to and shaken the hands of several thousand persons. Dr. O'Reilly, the family physician, cautioned Mrs. Cleveland in the beginning, after observing her manner, "not to shake hands so hard and not to lean over." "But I like to bend myself," she said, "when I shake hands, and I find myself so hard with my left hand that my arms are about evenly exercised." She shook hands with about 10,000 people on this occasion, it being her first popular reception at the White House after her return from her wedding journey in June, 1886.

The gayest of the gay young society girls of the Capital visit the young wife of the President as regularly as they were society reporters. Her constant high spirits are communicable, and those about her cannot but be glad they are alive. Besides the Saturday reception, Mrs. Cleveland is at home informally to her friends on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, from 12 to 1 o'clock; she assists the President at the New Year's Day levee and at the large evening drawing-rooms given in honor of the two houses of Congress and the judiciary, the diplomatic corps, the army and navy, and the general public; then she presides at the state dinners, gives luncheon parties, attends festivities at the houses of the Cabinet ministers, joins her presence at charity fairs—thinks the manifold exertion in it all, and something of an idea of the manual labor performed by this young woman is gained. Her muscular strength is remarkable. The people whose good fortune it will be to meet the lady of the White House while she is on her present tour will realize the fact in the hearty and cordial grasp of the hand she will give them.

The features of Mrs. Cleveland have been made familiar to the public by photographs, but they cannot convey to the spectator the characteristic charm which health, vivacity and good humor give to her varying expressions. Although she weighs about 140 pounds she is tall enough to convey the appearance of slenderness, which becomes the more marked when contrasted with the bulky figure of the President. She was 23 years old on the 21st of July last. She talks fluently without reserve and without affectation, and as a listener her attitude is one of alert and sympathetic attention. She is happy and confiding, playful and practical by turns, and is blessed with a good and kindly nature and a predisposition to see the best in all things.

While Mrs. Cleveland dresses well her tastes are simple. Her traveling dress as a bride was a close-fitting, handsome black silk robe, over which she wore a stylish loose gray wrap, a dainty peaked chip hat, with long white feather, completing the toilet. But while spending her honeymoon at Deer Park her elaborate toilet lay folded away in her trunk, while a simple suit of soft gray material for outdoor wear, with a plentiful assortment of fresh and dainty white morning dresses, completed her wardrobe.

In fact, Mrs. Cleveland, even gives the preference to white, which she wears upon everymissible occasions, either of grenadine, muslin or flannel, as the season may require.

During her first trip to the Adirondacks she ordinarily wore a becoming suit of dove-colored corduroy, and sailor hat with scarlet band, occasionally varied by a loose blouse waist of white flannel, with gray skirt, and an indoor dress of blue and white striped gingham, trimmed with white. During her visit to the Adirondacks this summer she was in light mourning for her grandmother, and wore a black flannel skirt with her white blouse waist, both trimmed with braid in lieu of usual gray corduroy, though oftentimes varying the monotony of the somber tints by a soft cardinal felt hat which lent a picturesqueness to the wearer.

During her trip in New York State last July Mrs. Cleveland generally wore a black cloth tailor-made costume with small black bonnet. At a reception given to her in Oswego she wore a most becoming toilet of white Indian silk, demi-train, the corsage cut modestly low both back and front, just showing a glimpse of the milk-white neck and throat. On her recent trip to Massachusetts she wore a handsome costume of dark brown silk with brown straw, small, round bonnet trimmed with soft surah of the same shade. Mrs. Cleveland made a very thorough preparation for the present tour. The necessary shopping for it coincided with that of the autumn refitting of her wardrobe, and she has made numerous elegant additions thereto, making purchases to that end in New York city and Washington. For traveling Mrs. Cleveland wears demi-toilets—that is, pretty dresses of silk, and not costumes of serge and cloth. One of her travel toilets is of brown silk; the basque is of solid brown silk, cut with a square opening on the bosom bound with white silk. The skirts are of brown silk sprigged with white. A handsome costume of brown and cream-colored plaid silk, with a bonnet of brown and high ribbon trimmings, is another of the traveling dresses; and a third is of black silk, heavily trimmed with jet. A new dress that will probably be used as a carriage costume is composed of black silk and velvet. The square-necked bodice of black velvet will have the pointed front edged with jet passementerie in broad bands, and the Pompadour opening will be filled with jetted lace. The front will be of silk, with side panel of jet, and the full back drapery will be of the rich velvet. A costume that is very becoming to her is a superb gown of black satin, with jetted lace front over white satin, with which she wears a black bonnet with white trimmings set high in front. Of her reception dresses proper a new one of yellow silk draped with lace, and with it she wears yellow plumes in her hair; another is a Louis XIV dress of pink faille Francois; the plain front draped with Malines lace; the train of the same color; satin and silk, striped, is embroidered with rosebuds. The corsage is cut square and veiled with lace. A third robe is of pale blue Siciliane.

IRELAND MUST BE FREED.

Gladstone Protests Against England's Cruelty.
(Chicago Tribune.)

Speaking to a deputation at Hawarden Gladstone said that, although the Liberals sustained a smashing defeat at the last election, the present year was full of signs that the judgment of the nation, when again pronounced, would be far different. The Irish question had continued to cast into a deep shade every other question.

It was to the interest of all parties to have that question settled. It would have caused unfeigned joy to him if the Tories had relieved the Liberals of the task of solving the problem by presenting Ireland with a measure of the justice which she is entitled to receive. Such an event would cast upon him the delightful duty of assisting the Tories to attain a righteous and a necessary end. He did not believe the end would be long delayed. Little progress would be possible in English and Scotch affairs until the Irish question had been brought to a happy consummation. It was said he had caused a block in the last session of Parliament. The fact was he had not made a single proposal during the whole session. Not by him nor his friends had the progress of affairs been stopped; it was because the Government found it necessary to occupy the time of Parliament with miserable and mischievous retrogressive proposals. Referring to the Liberal Unionists, he said he would not find fault with their conscientious opposition. At the same time their whole conduct was animated by animosity and hostility to Ireland, and they did everything in their power to deprive the Liberal party of all influence and vitality. It was a deplorable position for gentlemen professing liberalism. Sympathy with them was a dominant sentiment in his mind. Time would show that those who left the party were egregiously wrong. It was a misnomer to call them Liberal Unionists. There was no liberalism in them. Theirs was a policy which tended to destroy the union. It was equally difficult to describe them as Liberals while they supported a government of coercion—not coercion to prevent crime, but coercion to suppress the freedom of speech, public assembly, and even the freedom of the press. He had recently seen indications of police interference with public meetings in London. This resulted from the proceedings of the last session of Parliament. The Liberals warned the people of England that the cause of Ireland was their cause. He had then no idea the warning would be so soon verified.

If reports were true that the police called at midnight at the houses of persons who intended to speak at a London meeting, demanding to know the objects and programme of that meeting, it was a gross outrage. Such action was contrary to the whole spirit of liberty and violently at variance with the traditions of England. From a mere party point of view he might say let the Government go on. The more offensive their proceedings the sooner would they bring about the great object of his life. His constant prayer was for the speedy and satisfactory settlement of the Irish question. In conclusion, he said he would defer giving fuller expression to his views regarding Ireland until the opening of the autumn campaign at the conference at Nottingham.

PRESIDENTIAL VOTE OF 1860.

The popular vote in 1860, when Mr. Lincoln was for the first time a candidate for the Presidency, was as follows: Lincoln, 1,806,352; Breckinridge, 455,763; Bell, 589,581; S. A. Douglas, 1,375,157. The electoral vote was: For Lincoln, 180; Breckinridge, 72; Bell, 39; Douglas, 12. Thirty-three States voted, the total electoral vote being 303.

GIVING THE CORPS HIS DUE.

A Boston lady attended a funeral in a country church a short time ago, and, after singing a hymn which was striking, melodious and appropriate, a rustic male friend who was seated beside her remarked, with an air of intense local pride: "Beautiful hymn, isn't it?" The corps wrote it.

AUTOGRAPHS ON A SKULL.
A Texas Lady's Odd Brac-a-Brac and the Curious Inscriptions Upon It.
(El Paso Letter.)

A lady in El Paso has the most remarkable autograph album in existence. Her idea is not original; it was one of the foibles of the illustrious Donna Sol, who has recently charmed San Francisco with her art, and electrified New York with her tiger cat. The autograph album in question is a skull. It was originally the property of a Mexican who died on the Rio Grande without the benefit of a benediction or a bootjack, and probably, in its time, it wore a jaunty sombrero and held an unnumbered quantity of cigarettes between its glistening jaws. At present it is simply a polished white dome of bone with a brass standard screwed into its medulla oblongata attaching it to a slab of black marble. The pieces are held in place by wire-pins at the sutures. A taxidermist fixed it up for $5, or some such trifle.

So much for the album. The ghastly trinket is regularly sprung upon the young lady's friends, with the request that they write something appropriate upon it. The surface is as smooth as glass, and a little manipulation of an India-ink bottle and a lithographic pen does the work. The frontal regions are pretty well covered now, and the rear expanse is left for the back country not yet heard from. Some of the inscriptions are worthy of chronicling. Between the eyes is the verse:

Where is the patter?
Where is the clatter?
Where the gray matter?
The brain is dark.
Science erratic.
Religion dogmatic.
Are both quite emphatic
And both in the dark.

Behind this disgruntled observer of human nature has panned:

You mind me of Macchiavelli.
A great head and no backbone.

A sentimentalist leaves his tribute in a line above the ear, or rather where the ear was:

A shell from which
The pearl is gone.

Something in the same vein is another inscription not far away:

Empty scabbard, where's
The sword?

On the broad level space on top, as free from bumps vicious and intellectual as a billiard ball, are these two stanzas:

Do the thoughts fond, foolish, wise,
That run wild once in your brain,
Ever come in spectral guise,
And hold reverie there again?

Do they whisper, soft and low,
Through the empty chamber here,
Song you loved long ago,
Names you once held very dear?

Away over at one side somebody who had evidently taken in the contour of the skull, expressed himself in the following undignified proposition:

"I'll wager there is more on the outside of your head than there ever was on the inside."

A famous oarsman who passed through Texas not-long ago on his way to the Pacific Coast, was led unwillingly up to the depository, and finally expressed himself briefly as follows:

I have a weakness for skulls.

An old gentleman, who declared that the skull never belonged to a man, but was once part of the effects of a senorita and had worn a mantilla many a time, placed this line above his autograph:

A chatter-box, minus the chatter.

A studious friend to whom the autograph album was suggestive of Yorick, drew on the Bard of Avon for his sentiment and wrote:

Sans hair, sans eyes,
Sans teeth, sans everything.

It will be observed that he quoted ad libitum. Near this effort is a reflection that it probably suggested:

I believe now that beauty is only skin deep.

The last one is in a cavity that marks where a fine bump of veneration is turned inside out, and is brief and to the point:

A bone of contention.

"I have lots of fun with my skull," said the fair collector of signatures, for the Mexican has to her mind lost all proprietorship in it, "and I use it to get rid of silly people who always write such foolish things."

"How do you do that?" asked one of her victims.

"Easily enough. You see I have a regular autograph album also, and I produce them both. A bright person prefers the skull, because there is a subject right away. But, on the other hand, one of the sort who write, 'Last, but not least' and 'When this you see remember me,' gets frightened and turns to the book with a sigh of relief. So in that way I keep the skull tolerably select. Would you like to look at the book?"

An enormous boom.

(Lincoln Journal.)

"Yes," said the man from Biggsville, "we are having an old-fashioned boom. Four railways heading our way, streetcar company organized, new stock yards—"

New stockyards?"

"That's what I say."

"How large are they?"

"Oh, they're small yet. I'm using 'em for a hogpen just now."

THE MORMON BIBLE.

How Solomon Spalding Wrote it
Seventy Years Ago.
(Amity Letter to Greensburg Democrat.)
Amity is a town of about forty houses at present. It was located by Daniel Dodds in the year 1790. Here Mormonism was introduced in the year 1816 by Rev. Solomon Spalding, a graduate of Dartmouth College. He died here, and was buried close to the Presbyterian Church. The gravestone bears marks of relic seekers, as the stone is chipped and almost carried away. Last evening, when looking upon the grave, what a field of thought came upon my mental vision. Rev. Spalding settled here in the hope of finding a field of thought, leaving the reader under the impression that he had gained his knowledge from plates found in the mounds, and the hieroglyphics of which he had deciphered. He often amused his friends in Amity by reading parts of his fabulous story.

Rev. Spalding resolved to publish the section under the name of "The Manuscript Found," and entered into a contract with a Mr. Patterson of Pittsburgh, to publish the same. For some cause, however, the contract was not fulfilled. The manuscript remained in Mr. Patterson's possession two or three years before Mr. Spalding called for it. In the meantime a journeyman printer by the name of Sydney Tidgon copied the whole of the manuscript, and hearing of Joseph Smith, Mr.'s digging operations for money, through the instrumentality of necromancy, resolved in his own mind to make it profitable to himself. An interview takes place between Eligdon and Smith, terms are agreed upon, the whole manuscript undergoes a partial revision, and in the process of time instead of finding money they find curiosities, which, when translated, turn out to be the Golden Bible or Book of Mormon, which was under the prediction of Mormon in these words (see Mormon Bible, page 504): "Go to the land of Antum unto the hill which shall be called Shin, and there I have deposited unto the Lord all the sacred engravings concerning this people." Such is the account of the most impudent imposture which has been perpetrated for many centuries, especially upon such an intelligent Nation as the American people—an imposture which the religious world stands amazed, paralyzing the language, and defying the power of the United States Government. To place this question beyond a doubt, and to demonstrate the fact that the Book of Mormon was originally written in Amity, Washington County, Pa., the following names stand as witnesses: Rev. J. W. Hamilton, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Amity, Pa.; J. Miller. The latter made the coffin for Rev. Spalding; also a letter from Mrs. Spalding and John Spalding, a brother to this writer; also A. Ely, D.D., pastor of the Congregational Church, Monson; D. R. Wiley, principal of the Monson Academy; Henry Lake, Aaron Wright and Dr. Thurber, the latter three from Salem, Ohio.

Patti's New Tenor.

Apropos of Orlando Harley, the American tenor who has just been engaged for the Patti concerts in England, the Napa Reporter says: Harley as a resident of Napa about fifteen years ago. He was rather a shiftless fellow of the genus hoodlum, not being fond of work, and spent his time loafing about. He was taken sick here and as an inmate of the County Hospital he had a wonderfully sweet voice, but singing was confined to the simplest ballads as he had no knowledge of music. He used to sing around the saloons, and drifted to San Francisco where Emerson's Minstrels discovered him and made him a member of their elite. Since then his voice has drawn him a good salary. It is not a full chest tenor, but a peculiar and sweet falsetto unlike any other voice we ever heard. "Orlando" is his stage name, for he was known here as plain George.

Two Pitiful Cases.

(New York Sun.)
Two bruised and battered patients lay side by side in a hospital ward. "I'm a base-ball umpire," said one, "who are you?"

"I was one of the judges at a baby show," said the other, and then the older came and gave each of them a hypodermic injection of morphine.

Quer Tast.

Several colored families in Atlanta, Ga., have ornamented the graves of their dead children with bottles containing remnants of the medicine prescribed by the attending physician.

We notice that the sales of the Raymond Improvement Company in their Division No. 1 have been rapid, that they have been issued subdivisions more rapidly to buyers. To this end they have placed on the market their Division No. 2, located in the southern portion of their tract and in front of the Raymond estate. It contains 600 feet frontage on Garfield Avenue at $100 per foot. Everyone at all familiar with that section knows that the Avenue, already the main drive of the Ahwahnee Hotel, the station, over two miles long and seventy feet wide, will within the near future, be thickly timbered. The streets are now graded, roads are running for Alameda northward, and rails enough to complete the road to Raywood will arrive in a few days and at once be laid. Call on W. G. Hughes, Secretary, Room 102, Ahwahnee Hotel, Bank Building, corner First and Spring streets.

On account of the increased travel east, the Foothills road has been arranged for extra passengers, so that the straight Kansas City trains are also now running their emigrant tourist sleeping cars direct from Los Angeles to Kansas City direct.

TWO FRIENDS MEET.

"Hello old fellow. What have you been doing to yourself? You look like a subject for the undertaker," exclaimed the man on the right.

"I have been taking mercury and potash mixtures until they have nearly ruined me," squeaked the old man on crutches.

"And I," said the other, "have been taking the genuine Swift's Specific, which has built me up from the first dose."

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC.

Nature's own remedy, made from roots gathered from the forests of Georgia. The method by which it is made is observed by a half-dozen persons in Georgia, who initiated a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and thus formed the basis for the original discovery. The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great

HARRY HILL.

COLLAPSE OF HIS FAMOUS RE-SORT IN NEW YORK.

The Police Crash Him—The Noted Dive Manager Closes the Doors of His Den in Houston Street—He "Knows When to Quit."

(New York Weekly Sun.) Harry Hill has closed his place, where he had been thirty-three years, and the gilded wings of the huge wooden eagle above the dome of his saloon at Crosby and Houston streets gleam for the last time in the powerful light from the globe-covered gas jets and the big lamps on the outside of the building. Within everything was drear. The barroom on the first floor was quite deserted. The throng that in times past made it anything but easy going up the narrow stairway to the late theater and dancing floor was gone. The time-worn sign above the stairway, reading, "Lovers not appreciated here, and therefore not wanted," was a mockery in more senses than one. Half a dozen young women, all of them clump and more or less heavy-eyed, whose long acquaintance with the place made it a sort of home to them, a silver-haired Wall-street man, "Boston official with a party of friends," and Harry Hill seemed lonesome in the place. The spectacled waiter behind his lunch counter of ham and salads, and the dispenser of "temperance drinks only," were idle. The tables around which some of the pretty and frail girls of New York have clustered were deserted, and the jingling piano on the stage that has been the fountain of many of New York's best ballads, was closed and covered with a shabby green cloth. The drop curtain on the little stage was up, and showed a dingy painting of the Harry Hills of 1854. Even the string of hams hanging from the rafters looked lonesome. The thousands from Maine to California who have seen the resort on its halcyon nights, would scarcely have known the familiar place from its very dreariness.

A LONG FIGHT.

Harry Hill; with his clear-cut features looking rather careworn, still wearing in his shirt the familiar "G" composed of big diamonds, and his cable-link watch chain, sat with the Wall street men at one of the tables. He brushed the scant hair back from his expansive forehead and told a reporter that he called on Superintendent Murray in the afternoon to announce that he was going to close his place.

"I'm done fighting the police," he said. "They've knocked me out and I yield. I know when to quit. There's no use in trying to make money by running a dairy, and I can't risk selling liquor without a license, which I can't get after Recorder Smith has warned me, as he did the last time I was arrested, that he would send me to the penitentiary if I ever came before him again."

Hill was a long time coming to this conclusion and he took a great deal of punishment from the police before he succumbed. There have been thirty-four arrests in his place since the Excise Board refused to renew his license about two years ago. He was himself arrested six times and his barkeeps twenty-eight. Four indictments were found against him, on two of which he paid a fine of $250 each. It was when he paid the second fine that Recorder Smyth told him he would be imprisoned as well as fined if arrested again. Hill might have stood the loss of his liquor business, but it was the taking away of his theatrical license by the Mayor that knocked him out. His customers were content to drink his temperance liquids as long as there was music for them to dance by, but when the music was shut down on the experiment of running the place it proved a failure.

"I don't know what I'll do," resumed Harry; "but I don't bargain to leave New York. No, I won't go West; New York's good enough for me. But see the place now, and think of the times it was packed, as I have seen it."

Nearly all the leading variety and specialty performers made their early hits on Harry Hill's stage, and nearly all the wrestlers and boxers worthy of notice have shown up there. John L. Sullivan's first sparring match in New York was on that stage. It was with Steve Taylor for $50. Some of the variety actors who have graduated from that stage were Gus Williams, William J. Scanlan, Frank Lewis, Gus Bruno, Tierney and Cronin, Delephant and Hengler, and Jim Campbell, the stage manager for fifteen years, was a writer of sketches and songs.

Harry is known all over the country as a famous stakeholder. He held the Sullivan-Bryan stakes, and gave Sullivan the $5000 on the stage of his little theater.

SOME TYPICAL TEXTS.

He pointed with pride to these time-worn signs and texts, which cover the dingy walls of the place:

He who loves not woman, wine and song
Remains a fool his whole life long.

Old Testament: Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and for thine infirmities.—Paul to Timothy, chap. v. 23.

New Testament: Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine to those that let out their heart.

Let him drink and forget his poverty and remember his misery no more.—(Prov. xxxi, 6 and 7.)

"There's a sign that hundreds of thousands will remember," he said, pointing to this:

Gentlemen, sit on your ease,
Free to come for what you please,
Free to say for what you drink,
Free to stay an hour or so,
When uneasy free to go.

Profane and obscene language positively prohibited.

"The last part of that sign I have insisted upon," said he. "No vulgar songs were ever permitted on my stage. I have often stopped a performance when I saw even an intimation that the actor was inclined to vulgarity. I have dismissed them on the spot for trying to bamboozle me. I have discharged hundreds of waiters for attempting to cheat customers."

As he finished his reminiscences he handed this slip, written by type-writer, to the reporter. It is his valedictory:

"Any one who knows Harry Hill knows that for thirty-five years he has had the respect of the entire community, and never did anything to cause the public to disrepect him. I propose to still make my living as in the past, honorably and honestly, and prize the name of Harry Hill too much to leave the slightest stain on it."

There is no danger that Harry will starve. He is worth about $300,000 and owns a valuable farm and water front at Flushing Bay. He has a line of steamboats running between Flushing and New York, and his farm is amply stocked with expensive breeds of cattle, horses and chickens, ducks, hens and hounds. His saloon in Broadway, near Houston street, called "The Caricature," because of its gallery of ludicrous pictures of famous folk, lost money, or, at any rate, didn't make up for the loss of the Houston-street place, and he finally sold it last week to Nash & Jacob. The Houston-street concern will probably be run as a saloon if the future owner, George Williams, a downtown man, can get a license. Harry has a ten-years' lease of the property, which is built on land belonging to P. T. Barnum.

Business Cropped Up in Prayer. (Dakota Bell.)

The Rev. Mr. Bagley had charge of the Wednesday prayer-meeting, and after a number of those present had offered prayers, the reverend gentleman called on Brother Dawson. He accordingly knelt by a chair, and after a fitting introduction, said:

"And we desire to further thank Thee this evening for allowing me to put my new Northside addition upon—"

"Hold on brother, hold on," interrupted Rev. Bagley, "it hardly seems to me proper for you to introduce private real-estate deals in a supplication at church prayer-meeting. Don't do it, Brother Dawson."

But Brother Dawson was of a stubborn disposition, and this only made him more determined. He continued: "As I was saying, I desire to return thanks for Thy providential guidance while placing my Northside addition on the mart." As Thou probably knowest, I have thrown the entire addition on the market at $450 per lot, though they are well worth—"

"How's that, brother?" put in the Rev. Bagley, eagerly, as he took his face out of his hands and peered sideways over his spectacles from whence he was kneeling in front of the sofa.

"Four hundred and fifty dollars a lot, Elder," answered Brother Dawson. "Good gracious," replied the minister, as be arose, "there's money in those lots at that figure—just put me down for a block of about six—I'm willing to put my pile in Northside dirt at that rate at any time!" Here, Sister Dawson, bring us a pen a minute until we draw up the deed—I don't propose to take any chances on monkey business in as good a deal as this. Just remain kneeling, friends, this matter won't take but a moment's time."

The Herald says: "Today and hereafter the Herald will be printed and published simultaneously on two continents. It will appear every morning in Paris, and will be sold there for 2 cents, its New York price. The new European edition will cross the ocean by chain lightning."

29,000 Acres 29,000

—OF—

THE BEST CITRUS LAND IN THE STATE!

Offered for sale in twenty-acre blocks, and can be bought in five, ten, fifteen or twenty-acre subdivisions.

Lyle Creek Water Piped on Each Lot.

Avenues 150 Feet in Width Traverse the Tract.

Water Furnished from a Covered Cement Ditch.

This land lies on the elevated plain directly west of San Bernardino city. The plain is a vast elevated table-land, with just enough of gentle undulation to break the monotony of the landscape.

Owing to the elevation, frost is practically unknown. Flowers in myriads bloom during the winter, the tenderest tomato sprouts are unscathed by frost, and the orange blossoms bloom in beauty throughout the winter. The view is one of the noblest and most picturesque in Nature. Each twenty-acre lot has a fine road at each end.

There are 29,000 acres in this tract, but 10,000 acres only are as yet surveyed. The town, RIALTO, is located near the center of this 10,000-acre tract and on the California Central.

The California Central and the Southern Pacific both traverse this great tract, and in all probability the Southern Pacific's parallel route will soon add a third railroad to this princely citrus tract. The western line of the tract is about two miles distant from the San Bernardino Courthouse.

The plain grows as fine oranges as the world has ever seen and the finest quality of citrus fruit generally, as buyers can see for themselves. There is no better raisin grape land in California. In fact all sub-tropical productions flourish to perfection.
